1 INTRODUCTION

1.1 Legislative Decree no. 231/2001

On 8 June 2001, Legislative Decree no. 231 (the “Decree” for short) was emanated, entitled “Discipline of the administrative liability of juridical entities, companies and associations, including those without juridical status”. The Decree was aimed at adjusting the internal regulations concerning the liability of juridical entities to certain international Conventions (i) on the protection of the financial interests of the European Community, (ii) on the fight against corruption in which European Community officials or those of Member States are involved and (iii) on the fight against corruption by public Officials in economic and international operations.

This Decree introduced into the Italian legal system a regime of administrative liability (in substance referable to criminal liability) against those bodies (the “Bodies” for short, and to be intended as companies, consortiums, associations, etc.) for certain crimes committed in the interest or to the advantage of the Bodies (i) by individual persons with functions of representation, administration or management of the Bodies themselves or one of their departments with financial and functional autonomy, and also by individual persons who exercise management and control over the Bodies themselves, even de facto, and (ii) by individual persons subject to the management or supervision of one of the above subjects. Such liability is in addition to that of the individual person who materially committed the act in question.

The expansion of this liability is aimed at involving the Bodies which gained an advantage from the crime committed in the punishment of certain criminal acts. Of the sanctions provided, the most severe are those involving interdiction measures, such as (i) suspension or revocation of licences and permits, (ii) prohibition to contract with Public Administrations (P.A. for short), (iii) interdiction from exercising the activities involved, (iv) the exclusion or revocation of loans and contributions and (v) a ban on publicising goods and services. The liability provided in the aforementioned Decree is also applicable in the case of crimes committed abroad, as long as the country in which the crime was committed does not take legal action.

GENERAL PART

2. ADOPTION OF THE ORGANISATIONAL MODEL

2.1 Objectives pursued by the adoption of the Organisational Model

In order to ensure that the corporate business affairs and activities are carried out correctly and transparently, with a view to enhancing its own position and image, the expectations of its shareholders and the work of its various employees, the Company has deemed it opportune to implement the Organisational and Management Model (the “Model” or “Organisational Model” for short) provided by the Decree.

This initiative has been undertaken in the conviction that the adoption of the Model, leaving aside the prescriptions stating that the Model is an optional and not compulsory element, may constitute a valid tool for increasing the awareness of all those who operate in the name and on behalf of the Company, so that they may conduct themselves correctly and in such a manner as to prevent the risk of the crimes contemplated in the Decree being committed during their work.

The Model has been prepared taking into consideration the guidelines prepared on the matter by category associations and the prescriptions of the Decree.

In implementation of that provided by art. 6, paragraph 1), subsection b) of the Decree, a Supervisory Board (in brief “SB”) is set-up, with the duty of supervising the functioning, effectiveness and observance of the Model itself, and also ensuring that it is updated.

It is understood that in carrying out their duties, the SB has autonomous decision-making and control powers, the existence of the professionalism and continuous action requirements holding firm.

2.2 Function of the Model

The scope of the Model is to construct a structured and organic system of activity and control procedures, also to be carried out preventively, aimed at preventing the various types of crimes contemplated in the Decree from being committed.

- determining that all those who operate in the name and on behalf of the Company in the “areas of activity at risk” are aware that, in the event of breaching the dispositions contained therein, they may incur an illicit activity that could be criminally and administratively sanctioned not only against themselves but also against the company;

- enabling timely intervention in terms of preventing or combating the committing of possible crimes.

In addition to the above principles, the bases of the Model are:

- ensuring awareness and the distribution, at all corporate levels, of the rules of conduct and procedures adopted;
- mapping the company’s “areas of activity at risk”;
- assigning to the SB specific duties in terms of presiding over the correct application and functioning of the Model;
- verifying and documental analysis of operations at risk;

12 CRIMINAL CIRCUMSTANCES THAT CONSTITUTE A POTENTIAL RISK FOR THE COMPANY

Art. 6, paragraph 2 of Legislative Decree 231/01 expressly provides that the Organization and Management Model of the entity must “identify the activities within which crimes may be committed”.

In the Organization and Management Model adopted by the company, the identification of the “sensitive” company processes is the starting point for satisfying this provision. Therefore, a careful preliminary assessment of the risk level has been conducted (Risk Assessment), associated to the occurrence of the crimes provided by the Decree in relation to the activities carried out by the departments of the Company. The individuals involved (so-called key officers) were also interviewed in order to obtain more details on the activities carried out and assess the concrete risk profiles.

The results of the analysis of the crimes that could constitute a potential risk for the company are also included, among others, in the internal document entitled "Mapping of the risk areas". This internal document is prepared by the Company, kept by the S.C.B. and is available for consultation by the Corporate Control Bodies.
